Dear Taoiseach

I refer to your correspondence of the 19 October 2011 and 16 February 2012, on behalf of [REDACTED] regarding a family law matter. I note there is a very substantial dispute resulting from a marriage unfortunately breaking down. I am sure your constituent will understand that it would be inappropriate for me to comment on the family dispute that has arisen. I note she has instructed a solicitor who should be able to give comprehensive advice to her on the issues that have arisen.

The totality of the background circumstances will be relevant to the determination of the claim [REDACTED] refers to and I hope she understands it would be entirely improper for a member of Government to intervene in any way with Court Registry records. [REDACTED] should, if she considers that any document is forged or otherwise invalid consult her solicitor on the matter and consider reporting it to An Garda Síochána.

Yours sincerely

---
